May 2022 Financial Report – by Greg Neal

“Attendance is increasing and our financials are recovering from COVID low points. Overall, our month-by-month income is good and above past revenue. This is substantially higher this year because of major contributions in January. As a result, we have YTD net income through April of $4,159, which is much better than the negative we usually have this time of year. Our total assets are greater than $120,000 in cash and savings, which position us well for the future. The exact asset value is a little greater, but we are still under audit until next month.”
